Clear the "AI Noise"

Marie Forleo

A human-first AI workbook to free your genius and deepen connection

The Moment The Saw Turns On

AI can feel like a construction site: loud and chaotic. Most of us cling to the "hand saw" (manual work) because it's familiar, even as the "electric saw" (AI) sits right there.

Marie Forleo's reframe flips the switch:

> "I want you in your genius zone. I want to go human first."

During a hectic NYC renovation, Marie needed a formal letter for neighbors and she needed it fast. Instead of losing an hour, she dropped a tight prompt into AI, skimmed, tweaked, sent. Minutes, not hours. Energy preserved for what matters.

Use AI to Clear The Noise So
Your Brilliance Can Shine.

Balance speed with soul.

Use AI for quick first drafts. Then you come in polish with your voice.

Transparency builds trust.

Be clear where human touch begins and ends. Whenever AI helps, disclose it. (Drafted with AI, finalized by me.)

The Human-First Philosophy (Your Compass)

AI is your co-pilot, not your clone. It clears the drudgery so you can double down on the work only humans do best.

Brainstorming, not outsourcing you.

AI is great for getting you off the blank page, but it's your job to fill out and bring those ideas to fruition.

Scarcity has shifted.

With AI, information is more abundant and easily available then ever. The genuine human connection you can create is what people are so desperately looking for.

"As automation rises, human presence becomes priceless."

The 4-Steps Rollout
(Simple, repeatable, calm)

STEP 1

Define Your Guiding Principles

Write a 1-page AI policy for yourself/team. (What tasks will you hand to AI? What do you keep human?)

- Role of AI: Partner that removes low-value work
- Promise: Free our genius zones (creativity, strategy, connection)
- Guardrails: Accuracy checks, disclosure where appropriate, brand voice preserved

STEP 2

Hunt For The Drudgery

List everything that's annoying, repetitive, or energy-draining across the business. That list is your AI opportunity map.

STEP 3

Learn By Play (30 minutes)

Block one calendar slot. Open a free AI chat. Ask 10 questions about a single problem. Save the 3 best answers as mini-SOPs.

STEP 4

Make Curiosity A Culture

Create a Slack/Teams channel: #ai-wins.
Post weekly: what worked, what didn't, links, tiny demos. Celebrate experiments, not just outcomes.

Philosophy before tools.

"Adoption follows celebration."

Blueprints In Action

BLUEPRINT 1

The 10-Second Admin Assistant

Use when: A formal doc or message needs to go out, and perfection isn't the point.

Try this prompt:
"You are my concise admin assistant. Draft a polite notice to neighbors at [address] about [purpose]. Include: [key facts]. Tone: warm, professional, brief. Output: 150–200 words, ready to paste."

Run it:
Generate → skim for accuracy → add your name → send.

Win: Minutes saved, momentum kept.

BLUEPRINT 2

The 24/7 Brainstorming Buddy

Use when: You're writing early morning or late night and need a second set of eyes—without pinging your team.

TOP SECRET

Workflow:

1. Write in your voice first.
2. Paste and ask:
   - "Check grammar; keep tone."
   - "Give 3 alternative CTAs."
   - "Offer 5 fresh angles for this story."
3. Keep what sings. Toss what doesn't.

AI drafts options; you pick the winner.

BLUEPRINT 3

The Personal Pressure-Release Valve

Use when: Emotions are high; you need to process fast without offloading on loved ones or your team.

TOP SECRET

Setup:
Create a private "vent bot" with traits like calm, empathetic, lightly humorous.

Prompt starter:
"I need to vent for 3 minutes. Reflect back what I'm feeling, then ask 2 clarifying questions. End with 1 grounded reframe and 1 next action."

Outcome: Nervous system regulated → conversations go better → leadership presence preserved.

Team Playbook (Culture that sticks)

Announce The Stance

"AI is our partner. It frees us to do more human work."

Model the behavior

Leaders share their own drudgery lists and wins first.

Create micro-pilots

One tiny use case per team this month.

Keep the last mile human

Final edits, taste, ethics, and delivery stay with people.

"Keep humans on the Hook for what only humans can do."

IT'S YOUR TURN!

PART A	Drudgery Dump (10 minutes)
List everything that pulls you out of your genius zone. Aim for 15–25 items. Circle three that cost the most time/energy.
☐ Scheduling back-and-forth	☐ Document templates/letters	☐
☐ FAQ replies/customer emails	☐ Research summaries	☐
☐ First drafts (emails, posts, scripts)	☐	☐
☐ Meeting recaps & action items	☐	☐
☐ Data cleanup/formatting	☐	☐
If It Bores You, It's Nominating Itself For Automation.

PART B	Your First Pilot (15 minutes)
Pick one circled task and fill this in:
Task:
Success looks like:		(e.g., draft in 60s, not 30m)
Tool to try:		(e.g., ChatGPT/Claude + template)
2-step SOP:	1. Paste context using prompt below	2. Edit for 90 seconds; ship
Owner:	Start date:	Check-in: +7 days
Metric: Minutes saved per instance × times per week = hours/month saved
Paste-ready prompt: "You are my [role: admin assistant/editor/analyst]. Task: [what you need]. Context: [who it's for, key facts, desired tone, length]. Output: [format bullets/200-word email/3 options]. Keep it simple, accurate, and on-brand."

PART C	Reflection (5 minutes)
• What did AI do well?	"Win one hour. Reinvest it in magic."
• Where did you add the human magic?
• What will you try next week?

Quick Reference Cards

Great AI tasks (delegate)
• First drafts	• Formatting
• Summaries	• Simple letters
• Meeting notes/action lists	• Outline options
• FAQs	• Content repurposing
• Research briefs
Keep human (protect)
• Voice & story	• Strategy & ethics
• Taste & design calls	• Final approval
• Relationship moments	• Delivery
Transparency first

AI Advantage

Closing Notes

The noise fades when the philosophy leads. Treat AI as the tool that clears the brush so you can do the real work: serving, creating, and connecting.

"Be curious. Stay human.Let AI clear the noise so your brilliance can shine."
